

What are high output batteries?

The high output batteries are built with new battery cells (the actual bit of the whole thing that stores the electricity). The standards were built with older 18650 battery cells, but the new high output batteries feature the latest 21700 cells, which are more compact and run cooler. So where does this battery fit?

What is a high power battery?

The High Power Battery series is designed for equipment that uses much current at a rated voltage of 14.8 Volts or 26V. These batteries are suited for equipment inputs ranging from 18 to 30VDC. The Cool Black Series batteries feature a simple 5-level status indicator which shows you the capacity level.
